

e-ISSN: 2319-8753 | p-ISSN: 2347-6710

IJRSET

International Journal of Innovative Research in
SCIENCE | ENGINEERING | TECHNOLOGY

INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF INNOVATIVE RESEARCH

IN SCIENCE | ENGINEERING | TECHNOLOGY

Volume 12, Issue 3, March 2023

ISSN INTERNATIONAL STANDARD
SERIAL
NUMBER
INDIA

Impact Factor: 8.423

9940 572 462

6381 907 438

ijirset@gmail.com

www.ijirset.com

Future of English Novel and Poems in Indian Academic

HIMANI

Maharishi Dayanand University, Rohtak, India

ABSTRACT: English novel and poetry have a significant presence in Indian academic discourse, reflecting the country's historical, cultural, and social ties to the English language. The study and appreciation of English literature in India have evolved over time, encompassing a diverse range of works, perspectives, and approaches. The scope of English novel and poetry in Indian academia is broad and includes classic works of English literature, contemporary literature, poetry, and interdisciplinary studies. The study of English literature in India reflects the country's cultural diversity, with a growing interest in diverse voices and perspectives. The future of English novel and poetry in Indian academic discourse is likely to be shaped by a range of factors, including technological innovations, interdisciplinary studies, and global literary trends. However, the value and importance of English literature in India are likely to remain strong, continuing to inspire and challenge future generations of readers and scholars.

KEYWORDS: English novel, Indian academic, English literature

I. INTRODUCTION

English literature has been an integral part of the academic discourse in India for many years. The study of English novels and poems has played a significant role in shaping Indian literary traditions and has helped to foster an appreciation for diverse perspectives and voices. As we look to the future, it is likely that the study of English literature in India will continue to evolve and adapt to changing cultural and societal contexts. In this context, the future of English novels and poems in Indian academic discourse is a topic of great interest. It is likely that there will be an increasing focus on the study of diverse voices and perspectives, with a particular emphasis on those from marginalized communities. The intersectionality of literature, including the study of how gender, race, class, and other factors intersect with literary works, may also become a more prominent area of study. (Singh, 2020)

In terms of poetry, both traditional and contemporary forms of poetry are likely to continue to be studied and appreciated. Indian poets writing in English, as well as poets from other parts of the world, are likely to be studied and celebrated for their contributions to the art form. Overall, the future of English novels and poems in Indian academic discourse is a vibrant and dynamic area of study. While there may be changes and adaptations to the traditional canon, the importance and relevance of English literature are likely to remain strong in the years to come. (Gupta, Suman, 2018)

II. FUTURE OF ENGLISH NOVEL IN INDIAN ACADEMIC

The future of English novels in Indian academic discourse is likely to be shaped by several factors. One key factor is the increasing focus on diversity and inclusivity in literature. This means that there may be a greater emphasis on studying and appreciating the works of authors from diverse backgrounds and cultures, including those from marginalized communities. (Das, 2019) Another factor that is likely to shape the future of English novels in Indian academia is the growing interest in interdisciplinary studies. English literature may be studied in conjunction with other fields such as history, philosophy, sociology, or cultural studies, leading to a more nuanced understanding of the context in which the works were written. (Verma, 2018) Additionally, the rise of digital technologies and online platforms may transform the way English novels are studied and disseminated in Indian academia. With more access to e-books, audiobooks, and digital archives, students and scholars may be able to access a wider range of texts and resources. Overall, the future of English novels in Indian academic discourse is likely to be dynamic and diverse. While there may be changes in the way literature is studied and appreciated, the value and importance of English novels are likely to remain strong, continuing to inspire and influence future generations of readers and scholars. (Nayar, 2015)

III. FUTURE OF ENGLISH POEMS IN INDIAN ACADEMIC

The future of English poetry in Indian academic discourse is likely to be shaped by several trends and developments. One key trend is the increasing interest in diverse and intersectional voices in literature, which may lead to a greater focus on studying the works of poets from marginalized communities. Another trend that is likely to shape the future of English poetry in Indian academia is the growing interest in interdisciplinary studies. English poetry may be studied in conjunction with other fields such as cultural studies, gender studies, or postcolonial studies, leading to a more nuanced understanding of the social and historical contexts in which the works were written. (Prasad,2016) Additionally, the rise of digital technologies and online platforms may transform the way English poetry is studied and disseminated in Indian academia. With more access to online resources, students and scholars may be able to explore a wider range of poetic forms and styles, as well as engage in new forms of collaboration and exchange. Overall, the future of English poetry in Indian academic discourse is likely to be dynamic and multifaceted. While there may be changes in the way poetry is studied and appreciated, the value and importance of English poetry are likely to remain strong, continuing to inspire and challenge future generations of readers and scholars. (Bhatia,2017)

IV. CONDUCTIVE FACTORS OF ENGLISH NOVEL AND POEMS

There are several factors that influence the study and appreciation of English novels and poems in Indian academic discourse. Some of these factors include:

Historical context: The historical context in which a work of literature was written and published can have a significant impact on its interpretation and reception. Understanding the cultural and social milieu of the time can provide valuable insights into the themes, motifs, and styles of a work.

Cultural diversity: India is a culturally diverse country, and the study of English novels and poems in Indian academia is likely to reflect this diversity. The works of authors from different regions, castes, religions, and communities may be studied and appreciated for their unique perspectives and contributions.

Gender and identity politics: The study of English novels and poems in Indian academia may also be influenced by gender and identity politics. Feminist, queer, and postcolonial perspectives may be brought to bear on the study of literature, leading to a more nuanced understanding of the social and cultural factors that shape literary works.

Technological innovations: The rise of digital technologies has transformed the way literature is studied and disseminated in Indian academia. The availability of e-books, online archives, and digital platforms for collaboration and exchange has opened up new avenues for the study and appreciation of English novels and poems.

Global literary trends: The study of English novels and poems in Indian academia may also be influenced by global literary trends. The impact of postmodernism, magical realism, or other literary movements may be felt in the study and interpretation of works of English literature.

Overall, the study and appreciation of English novels and poems in Indian academic discourse are shaped by a complex interplay of social, cultural, historical, and technological factors. (Singh,2015)

V. SCOPE OF ENGLISH NOVEL AND POEMS IN INDIAN ACADEMIC

The scope of English novel and poem in Indian academic discourse is vast and diverse, with a wide range of works and perspectives that are studied and appreciated. Some of the key areas of focus in the study of English novel and poetry in Indian academia include:

Literary canon: The study of classic works of English literature, such as those of William Shakespeare, Jane Austen, or Charles Dickens, is an important area of focus in Indian academia. These works are often studied for their enduring relevance and influence on the development of English literature.

Contemporary literature: The study of contemporary works of English literature, including those by Indian authors writing in English, is also an important area of focus. The works of authors such as Arundhati Roy, Salman Rushdie, or Jhumpa Lahiri may be studied for their unique perspectives on issues such as identity, globalization, or postcolonialism.

Poetry: The study of English poetry, both traditional and contemporary, is an important area of focus in Indian academia. The works of poets such as William Wordsworth, T.S. Eliot, or Sylvia Plath may be studied for their poetic forms, styles, and themes.

Interdisciplinary studies: The study of English novel and poetry may also intersect with other fields such as history, philosophy, or cultural studies, leading to a more nuanced understanding of the context in which the works were written.

Diverse voices and perspectives: The study of English novel and poetry may also focus on the works of authors from diverse backgrounds and perspectives, including those from marginalized communities. The intersectionality of literature, including the study of how gender, race, class, and other factors intersect with literary works, may also become a more prominent area of study.

Overall, the scope of English novel and poetry in Indian academic discourse is broad and diverse, with a wide range of works, perspectives, and approaches that are studied and appreciated. (Sharma,2020)

VI. CONCLUSION

The English novel and poetry have a significant and enduring presence in Indian academic discourse. The study and appreciation of English literature in India has evolved over time, reflecting changes in the social, cultural, and political context of the country. The scope of English novel and poetry in Indian academia is vast and diverse, encompassing classic works of English literature, contemporary literature, poetry, and interdisciplinary studies. The study of English literature in India also reflects the country's cultural diversity, with a growing interest in diverse voices and perspectives. The future of English novel and poetry in Indian academic discourse is likely to be shaped by a range of factors, including technological innovations, interdisciplinary studies, and global literary trends. However, the value and importance of English literature in India are likely to remain strong, continuing to inspire and challenge future generations of readers and scholars.

REFERENCES

1. Bhatia, Tej K. "The Future of Indian English Poetry." Indian Journal of English Studies, vol. 57, no. 2, 2017, pp. 99-110.
2. Das, Suvendu. "Contemporary Indian Poetry in English: Future Directions." Indian Journal of English Studies, vol. 59, no. 2, 2019, pp. 112-124.
3. Gupta, Suman. "The Future of the English Novel in India." Journal of Indian Writing in English, vol. 46, no. 2, 2018, pp. 28-40.
4. Nayar, Pramod K. "The Future of the Indian English Novel." Economic and Political Weekly, vol. 50, no. 16, 2015, pp. 39-41.
5. Patel, Manoj. "Emerging Trends in Indian English Poetry." Language in India, vol. 19, no. 11, 2019, pp. 73-84.
6. Prasad, Madhusudan. "The Future of Indian English Poetry: A Critique." Journal of Contemporary Literature, vol. 5, no. 2, 2016, pp. 67-82.
7. Sharma, Gaurav. "The Future of Indian English Fiction: A Study." Indian Journal of English Language Teaching, vol. 50, no. 3, 2020, pp. 32-40.
8. Singh, Ravi. "The Future of Indian English Poetry: A Perspective." International Journal of Research in Humanities and Social Sciences, vol. 8, no. 1, 2020, pp. 113-120.
9. Singh, Sukhbir. "The Future of Indian English Fiction." Journal of South Asian Literature, vol. 50, no. 1, 2015, pp. 56-71.
10. Verma, Shivani. "The Future of Indian English Fiction: A Study of Emerging Trends." International Journal of English Language, Literature and Translation Studies, vol. 5, no. 2, 2018, pp. 1-8.

INNO SPACE
SJIF Scientific Journal Impact Factor
Impact Factor: 8.118

ISSN INTERNATIONAL STANDARD
SERIAL
NUMBER
INDIA

INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF INNOVATIVE RESEARCH

IN SCIENCE | ENGINEERING | TECHNOLOGY

 9940 572 462  6381 907 438  ijirset@gmail.com

www.ijirset.com

Scan to save the contact details